

At home with Kate: growing up in Katharine Hepburn's household, 2006, 230 pages, 0471783765, 9780471783763

A new book about Katharine Hepburn that goes where none of its predecessors have been able to go -- beyond the silver screen and into the daily life of the glamorous and mysterious film icon. Eileen Considine-Meara takes readers into Kate's townhouse on 49th Street in New York and introduces the many characters -- friends, neighbors, and fans -- who were welcomed and entertained in it, from Lauren Bacall to Michael Jackson to Stephen Sondheim. We learn that Kate was demanding and at times controlling -- but we also learn of her wonderful intelligence, sense of humor, and her abiding character, generosity, and sense of loyalty to those she loved. She loved to work hard in her garden, she loved to swim at the beach off her estate in Connecticut, and most of all, she loved to read in front of a roaring fire, even in the sweltering summer. This book includes rare photographs, self-portraits drawn by Hepburn, and personal memorabilia that Kate bequeathed to Eileen's mother, Norah Considine, as well as a delightful assortment of tasty and slightly eccentric recipes that Kate, an expert hostess, enjoyed and asked that Norah serve at her frequent cocktail and dinner parties. At Home with Kate is a complete delight.
